What is a Mobile Payment?

Mobile Payment technology is making its way into most merchant payment systems. It uses a technology called near field communication (NFC) which makes mobile payments a very safe, secure way to pay so that users do not have to use their physical card. Mobile payments come in a variety of forms with slightly different options, however all of the options are secure and allow you to store your card information on your mobile device. Mobile payments can be used in stores, online and offer a variety of other benefits depending on your mobile payment options.
